- Cold, cough, fever
- Urinary Tract Infections (UTIs)
- Allergies (skin related)
- Chronic conditions including: Diabetes, Thyroid disorders and Hypertension (High Blood Pressure)

- Most of the patients belong to low-income families.
- Educational levels are generally low, with limited health literacy.
- Many patients live in joint or nuclear families with multiple dependents.

- Proximity to their homes – many patients are able to walk to the clinic, saving on transportation costs.
- The clinic provides a sense of comfort and familiarity, especially for women and elderly patients.
- The reputation of the doctor plays a significant role, as many patients trust the doctor's experience, advice, and behavior.

CLINICS: PATIENT & HEALTH ANALYSIS SUMMARY

- 4. Usage of Lab Services: Lab services are actively utilized:
 - Patients often get basic tests like blood sugar, thyroid profiles, urine tests, and CBC done at regular intervals.
 - The affordability and accessibility of the in-house or partnered lab encourages patients to undergo diagnostic tests without hesitation.
- 5. Patient Profile: Housewives vs Working Women:
 - A majority of the female patients are housewives, many of whom visit the clinic for themselves and their children.
 - A smaller proportion comprises working women, typically employed in nearby tailoring units, shops, or as domestic helpers.
- 6. Child Patients: Children form a significant portion of the clinic's daily visitors:
